ABSTRACT

Designed as a supplementary resource for special education directors and teachers, this directory covers a five state area which includes Arizona, California, New Mexico, Texas, and Washington, and concentrates on targeted resources for Indian and migrant children with exceptional needs. After general discussions of services available for migrant and Indian children and of regulations covering the transfer of information, the directory lists the five states alphabetically, and includes state and regional resource people. Health clinics or hospitals for migrants are named, followed by names of Crippled Children's Services, Indian health facilities, and urban Indian health centers. All health facilities are listed alphabetically under each category by city or town. Where available, types of services are indicated. The last section is a listing of Bureau of Indian Affairs social service agencies. The directory includes all Title IV Indian Education Act projects for Texas. For each state, Bureau of Indian Affairs and Indian Health Service agency offices are listed under their administrative area office.

PURPOSE

This directory is intended as a supplementary resource for special education directors and teachers. The directory covers a five state area: Arizona, California, New Mexico, Texas and Washington. It does not include information of a general nature for all handicapped children which is available in more detail from other sources, but concentrates on targeted resources for Indian or migrant children with exceptional needs.

Oftentimes, a migrant or Indian child will have transferred to another school before the process of diagnosis or placement is completed. Using records about a child gathered by another agency or program may speed up service delivery or eliminate duplication of service.

Educational Programs

In many cases, public school educational programs for migrant or Indian children can provide tutoring, some health care or social services, transportation and staff to make home visits.

Indian children may participate in more than one Indian education program (Title IV programs under the Indian Education Act or Johnson O'Malley programs). The Title I migrant program uses a national, computerized system to document student achievement levels, health status and the last school the child attended.

Health Care and Social Services

Migrant health clinics, funded by the Bureau of Community Health Services, provide services to migrant children. The Title I migrant program in most areas also employs a special migrant nurse.

Federally recognized Indian children are eligible for services through the Indian Health Service branch of the Public Health Service. Health care ranges from minimal to comprehensive, depending on the service area. In addition, each state has one or more urban Indian health clinic. Social services are available for Indian children through the Bureau of Indian Affairs and Indian Health Service.

SERVICES FOR MIGRANT CHILDREN

Since children may be classified as migrants for up to five years after their parents have dropped out of the migrant stream, it may be possible for them to receive health services at a nearby migrant clinic even though the family has now settled. Children of these families are also eligible to participate in Title I migrant educational programs. Participation in these programs may prove of some assistance to special education staff interested in taking advantage of every available resource to aid handicapped children. Resources may consist not only of available services but also of information already collected by other agencies. Some examples are:

1. Title I Migrant Education Services
   a. Funds for special physical examinations and protheses such as glasses and hearing aids.

   b. Home visits are made to families. It may be possible to request that the migrant teacher or migrant aide deliver forms from the special education office at the same time or for the special education teacher to accompany the migrant aide or teacher on a home visit.

   c. Many migrant programs provide nurses or nurse's aides.

   d. Health and educational information recorded on the Migrant Student Record Transfer System (MSRTS). There are two MSRTS forms: (1) one which indicates educational information, including coded skill levels, high school credit accrual, and standardized test scores. This form is given to the migrant teacher; and (2) health information, given to the migrant nurse. A new section, the educational/health linkage system, will indicate to teachers in non-technical terms those medical conditions of which she or he should be aware and recommend that the health provider be contacted for further information. Under the new, revised system, if the student has been previously enrolled in a special education program, an "X" will be marked under the category "sensitive data" on the educational data form. Results of previous examinations and diagnoses based on those examinations can be retrieved by contacting the school or health facility indicated.

Health information provided to the migrant nurse will be recorded under the categories of the International Code of Diseases. The MSRTS is upgrading its capabilities this year to include codes for the most common diseases. A section called "contact data" will indicate the health service provider, name, address and phone number to contact for data considered sensitive. If a child has ever been diagnosed or treated for one of these diseases, the name, date and address of the treatment center is retrievable.

Educational and health records from the reporting school may be obtained by request through the migrant teacher and migrant nurse, respectively, in your school. It is recommended that the special education director formally request the information from the district director of migrant education.

If your district does not have a migrant program, MSRTS information may still be retrievable through the nearest migrant program. The state director of migrant education can tell you whom to contact.

2. Migrant Health Clinics

In addition to other health clinics, there are health clinics in your state for migrant farm workers and their children. (See appropriate page listings by state.) A migrant child in your school in need of special education services may be able to receive appropriate diagnostic or theraupetic services through a local clinic. In addition, the clinics maintain health records on children which may be retrieved. Within the next few years, most clinics will have access to a computer data bank which records all visits and resulting diagnosis and treatment at migrant clinics in any state a child has lived. (This service now exists at selected clinics in south Texas. The International Code of Diseases is used to record information.)

SERVICES FOR INDIAN CHILDREN

When a student is recommended for screening whom you think may be Indian, in addition to the regular special education information needed, also ask the parents if the child is an enrolled member of a federally recognized tribe. The child's enrollment number and the name and location of tribe will enable you to determine whether the child is elegible for diagnostic or prosthetic services from the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Office of Social Services, Indian Health Service (IHS) or urban Indian clinics. This information will also enable you to retrieve information already on record with these agencies. These agencies are listed individually under the appropriate states.

1. BIA Social Services

This agency provides the following kinds of services: Child identification activities, family and social workers, parent transportation to IEP meetings and student transportation for related services. Prosthetic devices may be secured from this agency. The scope of services varies according to the agency office. Generally, the child and his parents must be living within the jurisdiction of the agency assigned to his reservation to receive services.

2. Indian Health Services: Hospitals and Clinics

Services may range from diagnostic to orthopedic to mental health care. Services of particular interest to special education programs are: child identification and diagnosis, psychological and psychiatric treatment, physical therapy, speech and hearing, vision, and neurological examinations. The range of services vary according to site.

Criteria for service at an Indian health facility are generally (1) that the patient be an enrolled member of a federally recognized tribe, and (2) the tribal member is within the prescribed jurisdictional boundaries of the health facility in question. There are exceptions to this last requirement. For instance, if the patient or the patient's parents are students studying away from their regular jurisdictional area, or if the patient's parents are participating in the BIA relocation program, they may receive services at a local center. Also, any Indian may receive services at any facility not in the jurisdictional area if they have not spent more than 180 days away from the appropriate jurisdictional area.

Indian Health Service also provides social services related to medical care; for instance, rehabilitation and counseling. In addition to regular services provided by IHS facilities, specialized contract services may also be available. See number six below.

3. Urban Indian Health Clinics

These clinics are not restricted to providing service to federally recognized Indians. They generally charge a fee based on ability to pay. A list of these clinics is also included in the sections of services in each state.

4. Indian Children's Program

If your school district is in Arizona or New Mexico, the child may be eligible for contracted diagnostic and theraupetic services through the Indian Children's Program. The program serves the nineteen New Mexico Pueblos and two Apache reservations in New Mexico, and the Hopi, Navajo, Papago and Pima in Arizona. In hardship cases, special contract services with the University of New Mexico Medical School can be arranged for children whether or not they are in the regular service area. Clinical staff provide the following services: assessment and evaluation (including psychological, speech and language), occupational and physical therapy, pediatric neurological workups, art therapy, in-service training and vocational rehabilitation. The Indian Children's Program may accept referrals from public schools. For more information, call Dr. Albert Hiat, or a social worker, at (505) 766-6575.

5. Crippled Children's Services (CCS)

This program is funded jointly by states, county governments and the Bureau of Community Health Services. The specific agency name may be different in your state. Eligibility criteria and type of service vary from state to state, and services are available to all children. It is included in this section because in those states where there are large populations of Indian children, CCS may maintain clinics on or near reservations and share in health care delivery with the Indian Health Service. Differences in health care delivery, recordkeeping systems, and central agencies are noted for each state preceding the section on Indian Health Service.

6. Contract Services

In addition to regular services provided by the BIA and IHS, in many areas additional services are provided through contracting with specialized groups or agencies. Information about these services can be obtained through the contract programs officer in either agency.

7. Special Educational Programs

Ask the superintendent, federal programs director or your school principal if either of the special federal programs in your district serve Indian student: Title IV, Part A programs funded through the Indian Education Act, or Johnson O'Malley programs. These programs may provide home visitors, special aid for emergency situations, or some medical services or transportation to receive medical care.

TRANSFER OF INFORMATION

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) requires the written consent of parents for the release of information about their child. However, there are some exceptions. Although it is always desirable to obtain written consent whenever possible, when transferring information from one school to another for the purpose of continuing an educational program, please refer to the following passage:

> "An educational agency or institution may disclose personally identifiable information from the education records of a student without the written consent of the parent of the student or the eligible student if the disclosure is:
> (2) To officials of another school or school system in which the student seeks or intends to enroll, subject to the requirements set forth in §99.34 [dealing with notice to parents, etc.]".

Regulations: 45 CFR §§99.31(2), 99.34. Statute: 20 USC 1232 §(b) (1) (B).

The complete law may be obtained from the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) office. The FERPA office will also answer questions by telephone. The FERPA address and telephone number is:

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) Office
Department of Education

Washington, D.C. 20202
(202) 245-0233

A brief handbook outlining the essentials of FERPA and its relationship to P.L. 94-142 has been published by Indian Education Training (IET) and can be obtained from your state director of special education, IET (see address on inside cover), or ERIC. In addition, two other sources may prove helpful. The State of Arizona has published an extensive review of FERPA and its relationship to P.L. 94-142, Suggestions for Compliance with Privacy Rights of Parents and Students. It may be obtained through the Arizona Department of Education, 1535 West Jefferson, Phoenix, Arizona 85007. Also, the Education Commission of the States (ESC) has included an analysis of FERPA and its relationship to state statutes in Appendix A, "Legal Basis for Exchange of Student Information", of Interstate Migrant Education Task Force: Migrant Health. This document may be obtained from ECS; ask for document by name and number (Report No. 131, November 1979).

Additional Considerations for the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indian Health Service

Since employees of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and Indian Health Service are subject to the Privacy Act, they should be familiar with the 1977 IHS Memoranda entitled "Privacy Act—IHS Medical Records—Disclosure of Medical Information to BIA Contractors for Evaluating Handicapped Indian Children" (senior attorney, Public Health Division) and "IHS Support of Education for All Handicapped Children Program" (Director, Indian Health Services). Complete copies of both these memoranda are included in the IET FERPA handbook, BIA/IHS edition.

On November 22, 1977, a meeting was held between representatives of the BIA, IHS and their respective legal counsel. It was the consensus that ". . . BIA would be considered a routine user of the IHS Health and Medical Records Systems as described in the Federal Register (42 FR 52182, September 29, 1977). Routine use number 3 permits these records to be disclosed to 'Federal and non-federal school systems which serve American Indian and Alaska Native children for the purpose of student health maintenance.' For purposes of this program, BIA is a Federal school system. Also, it is the generally held opinion in the medical community that the 'health maintenance' of handicapped children includes the services mandated by P.L. 94-142." (Memo from the Director of Indian Health Service, Emery A. Johnson, M.D., dated November 30, 1977)

RESOURCES BY STATE

The following information is provided as a quick reference for directors or teachers of special education. The five states are listed alphabetically. For each state, state and regional resource people are listed who may be able to provide you with additional information. Health clinics or hospitals are then listed; those for migrants are followed by Crippled Children's Services, Indian health facilities and urban Indian health centers. All health facilities are listed alphabetically under each category by city or town. Where available, types of services are indicated. The last section is a listing of BIA social service agencies. For Texas, all Title IV Indian Education Act projects are included.

The BIA and IHS are organized into regional areas throughout the United States. In each area, there may be several agency offices. In each state, agency offices are listed under their administrative area office, so that one may find a particular city listed more than once.

Migrant Health Clinics

All these clinics offer full-time comprehensive services: A range of diagnostic, therapeutic, and follow-up medical services on a daily and year-round basis by full-time medical staff in a center setting. Provisions for dental care, health counseling, and outreach services, as well as adequate provisions for preventative services are offered either inside or outside the center.

Crippled Children's Services

CCS provides services to children, ages 0-21, who are Arizona residents and meet financial and medical guidelines. Psychiatric treatment is provided only when the need is a result of other medical conditions.

CCS has service sites at four reservations (Navajo, Hopi, San Carlos and White Mountain Apache). Traveling clinics visit other sites in each county. Copies of all CCS health records are kept by the county health nurses. School nurses are encouraged to contact county health nurses for referrals.

BIA Social Services Agencies

The following list is divided into two categories: BIA Social Services provided through the normal channels of BIA Area and Agency offices; and the tribal assistance projects and programs (TAPP), which are contracted by the Navajo Tribe. Specific TAPP services are listed under that program. The Bi-State program, contracted by the Navajo Tribe and funded by the states of Arizona and New Mexico through Title XX, follows the TAPP programs.

Tribal Assistance Projects and Programs (TAPP)

TAPP is a contract program with the BIA to provide services to eligible clients. Normal services are layettes for new borns, disaster/burn-out assistance, burial, emergency transportation for children back to the reservation, general assistance, counseling and referral. Eligibility for each service is determined by caseworkers at each agency office or field offices.

Bi-State Social Services Program

This program may contract for protective services for children. These services are usually related to abuse, neglect or exploitation and include medical or psychological studies for assessing or substantiating claims of abuse. Family counseling, in- and out-patient hospital services, laboratory and X-ray services, physical therapy, services of physicians, medication, and eyeglasses are some of the services available.

In addition, general counseling services, including diagnosis and evaluation, group, family or individual counseling, referrals and transportation are provided or sub-contracted for. Eligibility: recipients of AFDC, SSI and low income families.

Migrant Health Clinics

Except where noted, clinics offer full-time comprehensive services: A range of diagnostic, therapeutic, and follow-up medical services on a daily and year-round basis by full-time medical staff in a center setting. Provisions for dental care, health counseling, and outreach services, as well as adequate provisions for preventative services are offered either inside or outside the center.

Exceptions to the services above will be noted by one of the following codes:

(1) Scheduled Comprehensive Health Services: A scope of medical services similar to those listed above are offered by the project, but through intermittently scheduled clinics (e.g. one or two times a week at two or three hours per session). In general, these clinic sessions are backed by referrals of patients by nurses and outreach workers to local physicians on a fee-for-service basis at time when clinics are not in session.

(2) Scheduled Categorical Health Services: Focuses upon specific diseases or categorical emphasis (e.g., tuberculosis control, veneral disease control, maternal and child health, immunization, etc.) and does not offer a broad range of medical services in a clinic setting. General health care is provided through referral by nurses and outreach workers to private physicians and dentists on a fee-for-service basis.

(3) Administrative-Consultative Services: The project does little, if any, in the way of providing direct health care and devotes its efforts to consulting and coordinating the direct health care activities of other groups.

California Children Services (CCS)

The CCS provides specialized medical care and rehabilitation for physically handicapped children whose families are partially or wholly unable to provide for such services. The program is financed by federal, state and county tax funds, and supplemented by family repayments when indicated. In addition to conditions of an orthopedic nature, many others can be treated through this program, including diseases of the blood, digestive and respiratory system and plastic surgery. Anyone may make a referral. Referrals should be made to the county CCS office in the child's county of residence.

A brochure explaining the program with listings of CCS offices by county has been prepared by the program.

Crippled Children's Services

CCS provides medical and social work services to children, ages 0-21. A care plan is developed in conference with the school and IHS (or other involved health care providers). Other eligibility requirements are that the child be a resident of New Mexico and meet financial and medical guidelines. No educational or psychiatric services are included.

To determine whether or not there is a CCS clinic in your area, contact the county field health office. Generally, the CCS worker will be housed in the same office. There are eighteen sites in New Mexico.

Migrant Health Clinics

Except where noted, clinics offer full-time comprehensive services: A range of diagnostic, therapeutic, and follow-up medical services on a daily and year-round basis by full-time medical staff in a center setting. Provisions for dental care, health counseling, and outreach services, as well as adequate provisions for preventative services are offered either inside or outside the center.

Exceptions to the services above will be noted by one of the following codes:

(1) Scheduled Comprehensive Health Services: A scope of medical services similar to those listed above are offered by the project, but through intermittently scheduled clinics (e.g. one or two times a week at two or three hours per session). In general, these clinic sessions are backed by referrals of patients by nurses and outreach workers to local physicians on a fee-for-service basis at time when clinics are not in session.

(2) Scheduled Categorical Health Services: The project focuses upon clinics for specific diseases or categorical emphasis (e.g., tuberculosis control, veneral disease control, maternal and child health, immunization, etc.) and does not offer a broad range of medical services in a clinic setting. General health care is provided through referral by nurses and outreach workers to private physicians and dentists on a fee-for-service basis.

(3) Administrative-Consultative Services: The project does little, if any, in the way of providing direct health care and devotes its efforts to consulting and coordinating the direct health care activities of other groups.

Crippled Children's Services

Anyone may make a referral to CCS, either for treatment or diagnosis. Services are primarily provided through local physicians who bill CCS directly. A copy of all medical records are sent to the central office in Austin. Copies of discharge summaries from inpatient treatment are also kept on file. Regional, public health nurses are apprised of cases which require follow up. Information about services may be obtained through regional, county or local health departments, or directily to the State office:

Migrant Health Clinics

Clinics offer full-time comprehensive services: A range of diagnostic, therapeutic, and follow-up medical services on a daily and year-round basis by full-time medical staff in a center setting. Provisions for dental care, health counseling, and outreach services, as well as adequate provisions for preventative services are offered either inside or outside the center.

Crippled Children's Services

CCS services are provided through local doctors and hospitals or othopedic clinics, but CCS does not maintain its own clinics. Local services may be determined through the local health department, and records are generally maintained locally. However, when no follow-up is required, the records are sent to the permanent file in Olympia.
